

Leakage Test in Aluminum Parts

Our company subjects casted parts requiring special tightness to "leakage" test (impregnation system). We have called the process of filling the parts containing micro-porosity with a special resin under vacuum and polymerizing them (baking) as impregnation. Aim of this process is to give sealing feature to casting parts which require tightness.